PREFACE

This first edition of the Montana Directory of Manufacturing represents a new service to the people of Montana, as well as of the nation. As a joint venture of the Engineering Experiment Station at Montana State College and the Montana State Planning Board, the listings contained in this volume provide a more complete description of manufacturing industries in Montana than has been available previously. The primary objective has been to gain as complete an inventory of production facilities in the state as was possible.

Much of the preliminary work in the survey was based on the 1955 Industrial Survey and Directory of Manufacturing in Montana published by the Montana Chamber of Commerce. The directory section of this earlier publication provided an excellent basis for obtaining the more detailed information desired at the present time. The current publication may then be regarded, in a sense, as an expansion of one part of the Montana Chamber of Commerce's earlier work.

Information for the directory was obtained by mailing questionnaires to all known manufacturing firms within the state. Approximately a 35% return was obtained in this manner. Other firms in some of the major cities were visited personally. Complete entries are included only where permission was granted by a representative of the firm involved. Others are shown merely by name, address, and general product classification. In order to hold the directory to reasonable limits, firms that were determined to be engaged in retail selling only were not included in this study.

Information contained in this directory is as comprehensive and accurate as the basic sources and reasonable care in preparation would permit. In any compilation of this type, however, there will undoubtedly be errors and omissions. Users and readers of the directory are asked to call any such corrections to the attention of the Engineering Experiment Station at Montana State College.

The advice and assistance of the Montana Chamber of Commerce, as well as local chambers; Bureau of Business and Economic Research at Montana State University; Unemployment Compensation Commission of the State of Montana; and numerous representatives of private firms throughout the state was greatly appreciated and is gratefully acknowledged. Special thanks should go to Mr. John O. Beckwith, Student Technical Assistant, who did the majority of the work in classification of firms and writing individual entries.

EXPLANATION OF LISTINGS

This directory is divided into three parts, designed to show firms by product, alphabetically by name, and by location.

Since it was felt that the product section would be referred to most frequently, Part I is made up of firms classified by products. Firms are classified generally using the Standard Industrial Classification Manual of the U. S. Bureau of the Budget as a guide. One exception to this is the inclusion of ready-mix concrete firms since information on such firms could play an important part in future industrial development. Part I, then, includes all the information regarding specific firms which was available for publication. Where information was not available or permission to use such information was not granted, the firms have been classified as well as possible and name, address, and general products shown.

Part II is an alphabetical listing by firm name so that a specific firm may be readily located and referred by product to the complete listing in Part I.

The final section, Part III, a geographic listing, shows firms located in each city with these cities appearing in alphabetical order. Again a product reference is made so that the complete entry may be found in Part I.

To facilitate use of the directory, coding of entries has not been used. It is not necessary, therefore, to refer to a coding explanation in order to understand the entry. It was felt that in this way information would be more readily available to the user. Further explanation may be needed, however, in some instances. Where figures are shown in the form of a range, as in the number of employees or some plant capacities, this indicates that the individual firm falls somewhere between the established limits. This was done to simplify answers on the original questionnaires. Also, unless otherwise stated, the plant capacities shown are for a standard 8-hour shift.
